

Liezel van der Westhuizen

Biography The energetic, empowering, sharp-witted, and dynamically skilled talent of Liezel van der Westhuizen brings life and success to events, television & radio shows, and entrepreneurial journeys worldwide.

Seasoned and very much in demand, it is fascinating that the towering communication talent, nicknamed 'The Giraffe' in The Sunday Times, was "discovered" in a behind-the-scenes gig by a radio station program manager. At the time, Liezel was working at Jacaranda FM, and also making some noise as an Announcer in a local store. Not one to fear anything - especially hard work - this voiceover artist was also successfully multitasking as a proficient Public Relations Manager at Virgin Music.

Beyond being on some of the most listened-to airwaves, Liezel also became a household name after an impressive stint as the presenter of the hit South African music competition show, 'Idols'. She has captivated audiences the world over for years as a global Emcee, Executive Business, and certified Mental Fitness Coach, Motivational Speaker (specializing in Mental Fitness Communications), as well as being an authority in Personal Branding and doing effective Speaker Training.

Liezel's passion for education and communication is evident through her acquisition of three degrees which have been invaluable in laying the groundwork for a rewarding and award-winning career.

She has successfully attained degrees in Human Resources Management (BCom), a B. Com Honours, and a Master's degree in Business Communications. Liezel is also a certified Mindvalley Business Coach as well as a certified Mental Fitness Coach and a Certified Laughter Yoga Teacher, respectively.
